Fund manager comment

The period under review was marked by the French political situation and the early parliamentary elections. European equities were under pressure, particularly the French ones. Central banks continue to show willingness to reduce interest rates or are already doing so. In terms of sectors, we are seeing a classic shift in favour of defensive sectors such as healthcare, telecoms and technology. All other sectors came under strong to moderate pressure, with automotive, basic resources and construction the worst off.

The EuroStoxx50 index finished the period with a performance of -1.86 % compared with -4.79 % for the fund. The portfolio has been impacted by the strong correction on French shares which are well present due to their value characteristics.

Our behaviour indicators continued to improve in June which starts to justify an increased exposure to equities. We slightly reduced synthetic cash at 28.6 % which helped containing volatility. We are carefully increasing the exposure to the market.

Volatility has clearly increased in June due to the "French consolidation", for the index it stands at 14.2% on a 30 days average and at 9.16% for the fund.
