Fund manager comment

The European market tried to recoup some of the losses incurred in November. The performances of several European indices are not so bad but the problem encountered at the start of the year is still clearly there, i.e. the heavy concentration in few high-performing stocks. As long as the economic recovery doesn't pick up speed, traditional cyclical and value stocks seem not able to recover from their very low valuations.

From a sectoral point of view, Banks, Auto and Tech were rather in demand whereas more defensive sectors such as Pharma, Energy, Food & Beverage, Telecom, Utilities were rather weak plus Basic resources on the cyclical side.

The performance for the EuroStoxx50 index was 1.91 %, compared with -0.58 % for the fund. On the volatility side, the 100-day average went down to 12.10 % for the fund versus 14.28 % for the market.

For 2025, we are confident that the companies with lower valuations but good balance sheets as we have in the portfolio can experience a clear come back in an environment of further interest rates cuts in Europe and a possible improvement in the Ukraine situation.
