Fund manager comment

October was an excellent month for the fund, in contrast to the European indices. The divide between technology companies and more traditional sectors widened once again. The funding difficulties faced by all the 'hyperscalers' worsened and the Nasdaq came under heavy pressure, unlike other indices.
Interest rates on long-term bonds remain high, but the trend has reversed slightly due to the difficulties faced by the technology sector and its considerable funding requirements.
The EuroStoxx 50 index fell again this month, down 2.20 % compared with a gain of 3.46 % for the fund. In terms of volatility, the fund's 100-day historical average remains significantly lower than that of the market, at 8.45 % compared with 13.38 % for the index.
From a sector point of view, Banks, Basic Resources and Technology were the month's biggest losers, weighed down by rising interest rates. Among the outperforming sectors were Healthcare, Food&Beverage, Energy, Utility and Media.
During the month, we continued to increase our exposure mainly to defensive sectors and maintained our derivatives positions in order to get an asymmetric risk profile. We continue to anticipate an end to the cycle of monetary tightening and an easing of pressure from energy costs.
